

FCC,

As the information available about the new HDTV's being CableCard ready for this Fall will have HD Tuners built in for only Cable. Which is very surprising this has been okayed by FCC. These built in HDTV Tuners will not support satellite service. The satellite customers will have to buy their own dedicated tuners. This is strange looking at the size of satellite market which is growing at a sizable rate.

Does FCC have any solution for this?

Regards

Bharat Rohera